The Grand Swim

DAL Productions Ltd and Grizzly Productions Ltd today announced that DAL Productions Ltd have been appointed Executive Producers on Grizzly's incredible documentary "The Grand Swim".

The Grand Swim chronicles Oly Rush's world record attempt to swim around Grand Cayman to raise awareness of the global impact to the ocean caused by plastic pollution. The swim, estimated to take 30 hours of continuous swimming, turned out to be a far greater challenge than anyone imagined. The Grand Swim presents the difficulties, dangers and dedication involved in attempting what no one else has attempted before.

Directed by Mike Coggan and produced by Steve Garay, this joint production by Grizzly and The Biome Project represents their first feature length documentary project.

Lynn and David Coleman of DAL Productions said "We are thrilled to be joining as Executive Producers and work with such a talented team to bring The Grand Swim to a global broadcast and streaming audience. The threat of plastic pollution is something we care deeply about, especially being based so close to some of the UK's most beautiful beaches. Hopefully viewers will be inspired to avoid single use plastic in all it's forms."

Mike Coggan, for Grizzly Productions, added "We're absolutely delighted to be working with DAL Productions. From the first viewing, we could see that David and Lynn had a sharp and insightful understanding of film, and they instantly had a positive impact on the project. We feel very closely aligned with them and we share a great passion and ambition for evocative storytelling."
